DISCUSSION

Queen of the Monarchs, will be an hour long event celebrating the resilience of “Little Amal”. The youth will create a kaleidoscope of swirling butterflies in a climactic performance refocusing attention of refugees, immigrants and asylum seekers. The 350 young performers will be echoing Little Amal’s migration journey, highlighting the rich cultures and showing the many contributions immigrants bring with them.

The Walk (Little Amal) and The Wallis Present...

Queen of the Monarchs

Date: Friday, November 3, 2023

Event: 10:30 AM - 11:30 AM

Host & Location:

Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts & surrounding streets

▪ EVENT DESCRIPTION ▪

The Wallis and Beverly Hills become key partners in Amal Walks Across America, one of the world's largest free public art engagements, featuring Little Amal, a 12-foot puppet of a 10-year-old Syrian refugee girl. Created from the perspective of an unaccompanied child in search of family and friends, Amal Walks Across America is a celebration spanning 35 towns and cities of art, hope, and shared humanity amongst select cities that aims to unite communities and reframe the refugee story from crisis to discovery.

Queen of the Monarchs, The Wallis' hour-long event with Little Amal, celebrates resilience and new beginnings with a powerful dance, music, and spoken-word performance. Visionary director and choreographer Debbie Allen creates a kaleidoscope of swirling monarch butterflies - comprising 350 local students - echoing Amal's migration journey. A parade of young people including musicians, dancers from Debbie Allen Dance Academy, and other performers will walk with Amal around the streets surrounding The Wallis, culminating in a climactic performance with musicians, dancers, taiko drummers and more. Amal Walks Across America aims to refocus attention on the urgent needs of refugees, immigrants, and asylum seekers, and to highlight the rich cultures and contributions immigrants bring with them.

▪ IMPACT & PUBLIC BENEFIT ▪

An “international symbol of human rights” (The Guardian, 2022), Amal is walking across the United States to learn firsthand about a country that has long been a refuge for those seeking safety and opportunity—but is struggling with how to manage long-standing issues related to immigration. Amal’s engagement with hundreds of communities across the country will help spark important conversations to help us better understand who we are and where we come from.

Queen of the Monarchs features the iconic Beverly Hills Civic Center area where people of all ages, backgrounds, and abilities are warmly welcomed as audience members, arts learners, artistic collaborators, and visitors. The event will attract hundreds of young people as well as press and news outlets.

With this event The Wallis will deepen its partnerships and collaborations with celebrated local artists like Debbie Allen and her Debbie Allen Dance Academy (DADA) while engaging students and young artists. Robert van Leer, the new Executive Director and CEO of The Wallis, has made Little Amal a key priority in his first season and part of his vision to expand free community programming and audience engagement. The Wallis’ education team will activate around local schools while Miry’s List, an LA-based non-profit that works directly with newly arrived refugee families, will be on the ground offering impactful action opportunities for the audience.

“We believe that a Los Angeles that welcomes refugees and asylees with open arms - and in a way that promotes volunteerism and civic participation through City Council - will be a better, more compassionate, and more engaged place for all Angelenos. We’re very excited to collaborate with The Wallis on Queen of the Monarchs.

Dear Julian, Lester, John, Lili, and Sharona,

I am pleased to write to you on behalf of the Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts, which as we all know is a vital gem in our Beverly Hills Community. This November The Wallis is participating in the national initiative, Amal Walks Across America, one of the largest free public art engagements in the world. As a long-time Beverly Hills resident and a former Mayor, I can see how special this opportunity for the city of Beverly Hills to collaborate with The Wallis is.

Little Amal is a larger than life puppet of a 10-year-old Syrian refugee girl who is walking across the globe to bring awareness to migrant and refugee stories, and to highlight the cultures and contributions of our immigrant populations. As she walks in Beverly Hills, The Wallis will engage over 450 students through broad educational engagement and performance. Creating educational opportunities with rich community engagement, like Little Amal will bring, is part of the original dream for The Wallis and for Beverly Hills.

As someone who cares deeply about both The Wallis and the city of Beverly Hills, I am honored to advocate for this project. The Wallis is requesting a street closure on Santa Monica Boulevard to best accommodate Little Amal and to engage as many people as possible with her story. We know that a strong partnership with the city of Beverly Hills will make this event extraordinarily successful.

I hope you will share in my enthusiasm for this event, and the increased community engagement it will bring to the heart of Beverly Hills. Thank you.

Best,

As you may well know, Beverly Hills will be the Finale walk for Little Amal here in the Greater Los Angeles Area. I am excited to be the creative director for this glorious presentation which we are calling Queen of the Monarch, echoing the historic migration of millions of Monarch Butterflies in California over the Years. This Celebration which is being produced by the Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts will take place Friday, November 3rd at 10:30am.
